1979 - THE INTERNATIONAL YEAR OF THE CHILD

"In December of 1976, the United Nations General Assembly passed a resolution proclaiming 1979 as the International Year of the Child. To emphasize the significance of this special year, the UN asked the world to "think children", to celebrate their true potential, to take a hard look at each nation's programs for children at the local, national and international levels and to promote all children's possibilities."

U. N. DECLARATION OF THE RIGHTS OF THE CHILD

The right to affection, love and understanding.

The right to adequate nutrition and medical care.

The right to free education.

The right to full opportunity for play and recreation.

The right to a name and nationality.

The right to special care, if handicapped.

The right to be among the first to receive relief in times of disaster.

The right to be a useful member of society and to develop individual abilities.

The right to be brought up in a spirit of peace and universal brotherhood.

The right to enjoy these rights, regardless of race, color, sex, religion, national or social origin.

INTRODUCTION

Bureau of Indian Affairs
Office of Indian Education Programs

Many of the treaties between the United States and Indian tribes provide for the establishment of schools for Indian children. Thus, the goal of the education program of the Bureau of Indian Affairs is to offer Indian and Alaskan Native children quality educational opportunities, responsive to their individual tribal needs and unique cultural backgrounds.

Today, the Bureau operates and/or funds a Federal Indian school system consisting of 222 schools which include boarding schools, day schools, dormitories and tribally operated (contract) schools. The Bureau also provides compensatory education and exceptional child programs; finances supplemental programs for Indian public school students, higher education grants to college students and grants to tribally controlled community colleges; and supports adult education and vocational training programs.

The Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act, P. L. 93-638, allows tribes to contract for administration of BIA schools on the tribe's reservation. The increase in tribally operated schools is a direct result of this Act.

P. L. 95-561, Title XI, the Education Amendments of 1978, further emphasizes a full range of choices for Indian Tribes and parents. Control of Indian education by local Indian tribes is stressed, along with equitable funding and educational standards.

P. L. 95-471 provides grants to tribally controlled community colleges, enabling many Indian students to attend a two year college in their own communities. The Bureau is currently funding 15 of these colleges.

Additionally, eligible Indian college students receive grants from the Bureau to enable them to attend the university or college of their choice. Assistance is based on individual need and is supplemental to assistance available through private sources or other Federal higher education programs. Some tribes have contracted with the BIA to administer the grant program.

As an integral component of the higher education grant program, the Bureau has contractual arrangements with the American Indian Law Center which administers grant awards to eligible students enrolled in law school; and American Indian Scholarships which administers grants to students enrolled in masters and doctoral programs.

Bureau-funded schools served over 40,000 students in FY 1979, providing elementary and secondary education programs throughout the United States. Special programs were offered to meet the unique needs of these students and to assist them in both educational and personal growth.

In addition, special education programs for exceptional children were available in two hundred and twenty two schools operated and funded by the Bureau of Indian Affairs. Supplemental funds for exceptional and compensatory education were provided to all BIA funded or operated schools from the Department of Education.

The Bureau also provides opportunities for adult Indians to complete high school and gain new skills and knowledge. Eligible Indian adults who have not obtained high school diplomas may complete their education through the high school level, either by regular high school courses, General Education Development (GED) courses, or classes in Adult Basic Education, (ABE).

Congress has also provided educational opportunities for Indian and Alaskan Native children where regular educational facilities are not available. Under the terms of P. L. 874, 81st Cong. (64-Stat. 1101), as amended August 13, 1958, Federal aid was made available to eligible school districts educating Indian children. This aid is available to meet partial costs of normal school operation. Additional supplemental aid for the education of Indian and Alaskan Native children under the Johnson-O'Malley (JOM) Act of 1934 is limited to districts that do not qualify under the P. L. 874 program. JOM is intended to meet special educational needs arising from extra-ordinary circumstances, including services and programs designed to facilitate the education of these children.

In summary, the Bureau of Indian Affairs has direct responsibility for Indian and Alaskan Native children enrolled in Federal schools and housed in Federal dormitories and partial financial responsibility for two-thirds of those enrolled in public schools.

"Statistics Concerning Indian Education" is a booklet published annually by the Bureau of Indian Affairs and copies are available upon request.

Tables

Congressional appropriations to the Bureau of Indian Affairs are limited to the education of children of Indian tribes who are federally recognized and are one-fourth or more degree of Indian blood and native children in Alaska, except for the Cherokee Agency where children of less than one-fourth degree of Indian blood enrolled in the tribe may attend Federal schools. Native children in Alaska are Indian, Eskimo and Aleut. The following tables relate to Indians and native children as defined above, and to their schools.

A list of federally recognized tribes eligible to participate in the Federal school system, including native Alaskans follows Table 21.

Table 8.
Indicates enrollment and average daily membership (ADM) in Federal schools by type of school and area. Average daily membership for all schools was 90.0 percent in 1979 as compared to 92.3 percent in 1978. ADM may be higher than total enrollment. Enrollment reflects the enrollment of a student into the BIA school system, while ADM indicates the daily membership of the particular schools. When a student changes schools, the student is shown as "enrolled" at the original school but the membership is recorded at the new school.

Table 15.
Indicates total enrollment by tribe: BIA boarding and day schools, dormitories and tribally operated (contract) schools.

Table 16.
Indicates the number of high school graduates and the number of Post High completions or placements.

In line with the Bureau's policy of encouraging public school enrollment of Indian children, many students transfer to public schools when they reach the sixth grade and have acquired some facility in the use of the English language. This is a factor in the seemingly low numbers of graduates of Federal high schools.

Table 17.
Indicates the number of students enrolled in schools by States receiving assistance through the contracts funded under the Johnson-O'Malley Act which became law in 1934.

Table 18.
Indicates the completed school construction, both new and replacements, during fiscal year 1979.

Table 19.
Indicates the extent of the activities carried out under Title I. In fiscal year 1979, the Bureau of Indian Affairs participated for the eleventh year in the Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

Table 20.
Indicates the number of undergraduate and graduate students who received scholarship grants in fiscal year 1979, also the number of students earning degrees.

*A.D.M. may be higher than total enrollment. Enrollment reflects the enrollment of a student into the BIA school system, while A.D.M. indicates the daily membership of the particular schools. When a student changes schools, the student is shown as "enrolled" at the original school but the membership is recorded at the new school.
